Jointly Organized By

CESRAN International

Keele University - School of Politics, International Relations & Philosophy

Karadeniz Technical University - Department of International Relations

In Ancient Greece, the earth was divided into three separate pieces of land; Europe, Asia, and Africa. The boundaries were water ways. For instance, the Mediterranean Sea was the boundary between Africa and Europe; the Nile was the boundary between Africa and Asia. While the boundaries which separate Africa from Europe and Asia were clear, there was no certain boundary between Europe and Asia. That is why; thenceforth many inclusion and exclusion ways have been produced to describe the placement of Europe, Asia and Africa in the modern world. From this point of view, we embrace the idea that wider Eurasia comprised of Europe, Asia and Africa.

With this embracement in mind, the 1st Annual Conference on Eurasian Politics & Society is being organized jointly by CESRAN International, Keele University and Karadeniz Technical University on 20th–21st March 2014 in Trabzon, Turkey.
